ABOUT

A large-scale contemporary portrait of a woman in a veil, composed in ochre and earthy tones. Created by Mohamed Taman using his distinctive mixed media technique of layered varnish and pigment, the work explores visual opacity and surface distortion. The figure is shown frontally, with facial features and clothing partially obscured by the textured application.

Signed by the artist on the reverse. Newly framed.

Mohamed Taman (b. 1976, Egypt) is a contemporary artist known for his figurative compositions exploring identity, visibility, and cultural codes. Working primarily with layered surfaces and mixed media, his practice reflects a sustained engagement with the politics of representation in the Arab world.
