ABOUT

Leather upholstery wooden box with royal purple velvet interior. Decorated with intricate gilt stamping depicting birds, butterflies, bees, and flowers all over the surface. The brass opening frame is hallmarked "Ancne Mson Giroux / A Paris". The Key is missing. Slight wear on the bottom of the wooden base.

Francois-Simon-Alphonse Giroux was known as "the merchant of the princes". He became an important Parisian manufacturer of luxury furniture and accessories. His works were supplied to the Crown, the aristocracy, and the bourgeoisie.

Our expert guest Rabah El A'awar (artist, art researcher, and art writer) and Cabinet of Curiosity are proud to present research about Maison Giroux, whose success is inseparable from the development of new industrial art. Watch our YouTube Blog about Maison Giroux and other inventors.
