ABOUT

This Dutch Amsterdam School ceiling lamp from the 1920s features a large stained glass shade in warm red and orange hues with Art Deco geometrical and cloud-like patterns. The twelve-sectioned domed shade is made of brass and has decorated glass panes, and it is adorned with brass rims and black fringe at the bottom. The fixture is suspended with four beaded cords from the ceiling rose, which features an integrated pointed shade. One of the four fixture chains is missing.
